Introducing Circuit Explorer Line

Circuit Explorer Kits turn curious kids into confident circuit builders.

With 30+ smart electronic blocks that connect together via magnetic wires, they'll master series, parallel, and combined circuits while uncovering the fundamentals of electricity one hands-on experiment at a time.

Labbox powers STEAM Education, Maker movement, Project-Based and Personalized learning and design thinking. Labbox is a powerful and universal language to help kids become not only intelligent consumers of technology, but also inventors of the world around them.

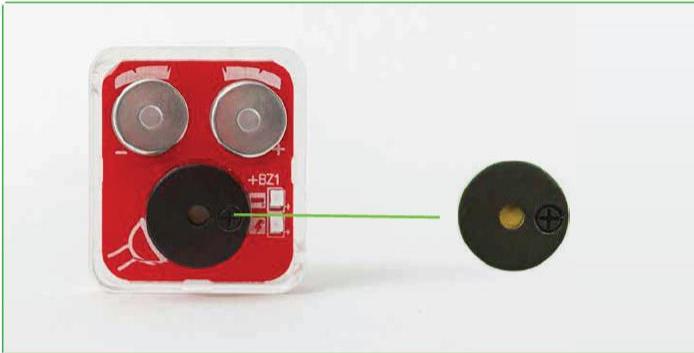

For Ages 8 - 99

Labbox is a growing library of electronic blocks, designed to discover the science of circuits and electronics.

Labbox Basics

1 Each block is a real electronic component that lets you build working circuits.

Connect the blocks with magnetic wires and learn circuit science to make them work!

2 Blocks are color-coded by function

3 Mind the flow of electricity
Some blocks only work one way. Look for signs that show which side goes where.

Polarity signs

5 Protected Blocks

All your blocks are protected, so you can experiment and play without worrying!

Protective Circuitry

4 Mistake Indicators

They help you identify the flow of electricity, troubleshooting and learning reinforcement.

Light indicators that inform you about mistakes

6 Magnetic Connectors

You connect the blocks with magnetic wires to form circuits

Building Circuits with Labbox

Series Circuit

In a series circuit, blocks are connected in a single loop

Parallel Circuit

In a parallel circuit, blocks are connected side-by-side, allowing the current to divide.

Get to know your blocks

POWER BLOCK

Every circuit needs something to give it power. The Power Block is the special block you must use to turn your circuit on.

BUZZER

Bzzz! The Buzzer Block makes a loud sound that nobody can ignore—just like an alarm clock!

LIGHT

The Light Block shines bright. It's a cool choice when you need to light up your projects.

MULTICOLOR LIGHT

A Multicolor Light is a light that shines many different colors. The main colors it shows are RED, GREEN, and BLUE.

NUMBER DISPLAY

The Number Display Block is like a small screen that shows numbers clearly, just like the numbers on a traffic light.

SERVO MOTOR

There are two Servo Motors (the 360 and the 180). They share the same Servo Controller, depending on which one you attach, you will either get a motor that turns half-way or a full circle.

SWITCH

The Switch is a small and easy way to turn your creations on and off. It has a lever you can flip back and forth.

BUTTON

A button block is important for many projects. When you push the button, it turns your project on. When you let go, it turns it off.

TIJT

The Tilt Block is a special kind of switch. It turns on or off when you tilt it or move it to a certain angle

RESISTOR

The Resistor Block is like a tiny speed bump that slows down electricity in your project. By sliding its lever, you can make it easier or harder for electricity to flow

MOTOR CONTROLLER

The Motor Controller helps you control a motor or a fan. It makes your projects move!

DIMMER

The Dimmer Block is a knob you can turn to control other blocks.

LIGHT SENSOR

The Light Sensor Block is a sensor that can see light. It has a switch that lets you choose if it looks for light or dark.

DISTANCE SENSOR

You can measure how far things are with the Distance Sensor Block. When you turn it on, a row of lights shows how close an object is.

COMPARATOR

A Comparator Block is like a little judge in your circuit. It looks at a signal and compares it to a set number. If the signal is higher or lower than that number, the Comparator Block makes a decision and turns something on or off.

LABDOX

Labbox helps you build parallel circuits with fewer wires. It is a ready-to-use circuit that can connect up to six blocks.

TIMER

The Timer Block takes the signal it gets and passes it along. It keeps the signal active for the number of seconds you set, then goes back to normal.

I'm a creator.

I can shape the future.

Give every child the power to create with Labbox.

Labbox/Circuit Explorer vs. Other circuitry brands like Snap Circuits:

- True component-level learning, not just toy snap-on parts: Labbox's blocks represent real electronic components (resistors, switches, etc.), and when you build "series" or "parallel" circuits with them, you're recreating real circuits just like in a textbook or classroom.
- Encourages exploration, problem-solving, and debugging: Labbox is designed so that mistakes are part of the process: "mistake-indicators" show when a circuit is wrong, encouraging kids to debug on their own and understand why something fails instead of just following a recipe.
- Better scaling to more advanced and creative projects: Because you're dealing with "real components," kids and teens can tinker, combine components in new ways, and build projects closer to real electronics or even simple robotics.
- Hands-on understanding of actual electronic principles: With Labbox, the learning is less about "toy magic" and more about actual cause-and-effect in circuits: how current flows, what changes when you add resistors or switches, why parallel vs series matters, giving a more meaningful STEM foundation.
- Summary: Brands like Snap Circuits are great beginner-toys: fun and motivating, but Labbox builds real skills, critical thinking, and real engineering intuition. Snap Circuits comes with manuals and "recipes" for dozens of projects, but there is less space for exploration and discovery. It is also plastic wrapped which takes away the "real electronics' feeling, breaks easier and non tolerant to mistakes
